

In sprint 3, we are implementing three main features; the first is the ability for students to create their profile, the second is for student's to apply to the job postings that were implemented last sprint, and the last is for employers to be able to see the details of these applications through the YourScope portal. All three of these features are each a part of the critical path of our network diagram, which can be seen outlined in red above. We were successfully able to implement the last feature in our critical path this sprint due to strong planning with the back end done early on so that the front end developers would have an easier time calling the endpoints created.
